Submissions and Subscriptions

The Journal for the Society of North Carolina Archivists seeks to support the theoretical, practical, and scholarly aspects of the archival professions by publishing articles and reviews related to curatorial issues (e.g., collection management and development), technical services (e.g., cataloging, processing, digital collections, EAD, preservation, conservation, etc.), and public services (reference, instruction, outreach) for special collections and archives.

The Journal accepts a range of articles related to research, study, theory, or practice in the archival professions. All members of the archival community, including students and independent researchers, are welcome to submit articles and reviews. Contributors need not be members of SNCA or live in the state of North Carolina. The Journal will not reprint or republish articles submitted to and accepted by other publications. Full manuscript submission requirements can be found at: <http://www.ncarchivists.org/publications>.
